Says Government Road Grant Will Be Larger

Executives of the Board of Trade met Wednesday evening in the Bank of Montreal chambers and despatched several business matters.

An Arbitration Committee was added to the standing committees of the Board and Mr. Durrant appointed as chairman.

A letter was received from the Poplar Community appointing Mr. J. Duncan as the representative of that district on the Board.

Mr. N. Hill proffered his resignation as secretary, which he asked the council to accept, as he was unable to devote sufficient time to a satisfactory discharge of his duties. The chairman felt Mr. Hill's services could not be dispensed with, and this being concurred with by the meeting, Mr. Eby was asked to assist the Secretary, which he agreed to do protem.

Some talk arose regarding the Sumas dyking works, during which Mr. Whitechelo gave the information that the farmers would be consulted by the government regarding the subdivision of the lands, and the pricing of same, so that neighboring land values would not be adversely affected.

Dr. Quinn was asked to do some work in connection with the Health department, and in conjunction with Constable Broughton inspect one or two drains.

Roads were discussed at some length by the meeting, Mr. Shortreed again calling attention to the unsatisfactory methods of handling this work.

The president stated he had received a letter from Mr. Barrow saying a much larger grant will be available for Abbotsford this year for this work and that Mr. Barrow will attend a meeting of the Board and go into the matter thoroughly.

Mr. Rowley called attention to the road to Clayburn and asked that part of a $1500 allowance from the Government be spent in its improvement.

Recommendations were read by Mr. Shortreed in his report from municipal councillors:

Councillor Frith asks that a sidewalk or gravel be placed on Huntingdon road south from the boundary on the east side and states municipality will endeavor to assist. Also that the street from the G. N. tracks to South Boundary road and from opposite the English Church on McKenzie road to south boundary of townsite be improved. Also that the Government be asked to do certain improving in these areas.

Councillor Mutch recommends the cutting down of the sharp knolls on the River road north of the town and the gravel be put in the low places.

Councillor Campbell desires the Government to announce the route of the permanent highway across the reclaimed lands as soon as possible and that a permanent road be opened north from Norton station, and that the Sumas lands be sold only to actual settlers who will develop them.

Mr. Shortreed's report included an outline of work which was proposed last year and which has been only partially completed. It includes considerable work yet to be performed on the following thoroughfares: Oscar street, Melrose avenue, South boundary, Pauline street, West Boundary road, Laurel street, Hazel street, Pine street, Maple street, North Boundary road, Elm street, Westminster and Yale road, Railroad avenue and Essendene avenue.

The President suggested that Mr. Barrow and his engineer be invited to go into these matters as soon as possible.

The oiling of roads came in for consideration and a discussion started on the quantity of oil required for a given area of road. The Secretary was instructed to get information on this matter.

Those present were: Messrs. Shortreed, Rowley, Eby, Whitechelo, Hill, Heller and Dr. Quinn.

Mr. Alex McKinnon received an encore for his rendition of Robert Service's Sam McGee, while Mr. E. Ireland mystified his delighted audience with his clever sleight of hand. Mr. C. Ball also had his audience guessing as to what became of a coin and thumb which he exhibited for inspection and lost somewhere. Mr. J. Kerr gave a fine interpretation of Kipling's "If". Mr. S. Good in a brief speech emphasized the benefit derived by the co-operation of the people for the mutual enjoyment and edification of the residents of the district, in fostering the community spirit in all their undertakings.

Master Johnnie Tomaso, although of tender age exhibited considerable talent as a violinist. It is worthy of note that his execution was remarkably clear and true, and he shows great promise of becoming not only an acceptable instrumentalist, but a good musician.

Great fun was caused by a singing contest for Ladies and a like event for the gentlemen. Resulting in Mrs. D. Mathers winning first prize for her singing of the test piece. She was presented with a medal pendant upon a necklace, both made by some freak artist, who luckily is unknown. ## Sumas Will Enforce Pound Bylaw Sumas municipal council met on Saturday last and handled a considerable agenda of business.

Following the adoption of minutes, the tender of William Chadley for construction of a continuation of the Col road across Lot 227 at the price of $400 was considered and laid over pending engineer's report relative to draining.

An application by representatives of the Salvation Army for financial assistance was responded to with a grant of $100.

Mr. N. Hill, representing the M. S. A. Hospital Association appeared with a request that the road fronting the hospital be improved, and Councillor Frith was instructed to co-operate with the Matsqui council in the matter, and to share with them the expense of making this improvement.

Thomas Elliott requested the Council to provide him with a thoroughfare to his farm, on which he is cultivating 100 acres. Councillor Lawson was delegated to attend to this request and was empowered to expend up to $500 to provide a road for Mr. Elliott, whose land is situated on Lot 10, Town ship 19.

Instructions were issued all road foremen to have vouchers for their expenses in Clerk's office at least four days previous to meetings, to enable proper checking and providing for same.

Engineer Humphreys issued a certificate recommending the further payment of $400 to Thomas Wright for work on the Potter ditch contract.

The Pound Bylaw was given considerable and interesting discussion, and it was decided that it be strictly enforced throughout the entire municipality, excepting the areas north of the V. V. & E. railway and E. Boley's. Councillors were instructed to appoint Pound Keepers in their respective wards.

In connection with provisions of the Forestry Act Roy Serl was appointed Fire Prevention Officer to take initiative action in absence of the fire warden.

The Bowman road, half-mile north of the U. S. boundary was cancelled.

The borrowing of $6000 from the Royal Bank was authorized to carry the municipal work over until the taxes of this year are paid.

In connection with the drainage of the area in the vicinity of the DeLair station Councillors Frith and Starr are to confer with Engineer Eddy of the B. C. E. and arrange some joint action.

Death Takes Young Man

The untimely death occurred on Wednesday of John Thomas Weston son of Mr. and Mrs. Weston of St. Nicholas at the age of 18 years. The lad had suffered a slight valvular derangement of the heart for some time, and contracted a cold a few days previous to his death, which it is thought caused the fatal result.

Interment was made yesterday afternoon in the Hazelwood cemetery, services being conducted by the Rev. A. H. Priest.

The deceased lad came here three years ago from Alberta with his parents and was well liked locally, always being of a pleasant nature and manner. He was to have been confirmed in the local Anglican church with his brother this coming Sunday.

Wade nodded slowly.
"That's the idea, but I'm afraid we can't do it, Lem. I haven't a doubt but that Moran is mixed up in the killing, but I hardly believe Rexhill is. Anyhow, they've probably covered their tracks so well that we'll never be able to connect them with it."

"Oh, I don't know. You can't always tell what time'll bring to light." Trowbridge lowered his voice. "What's your idea about Santry? Do you want help there?"

"No," Wade spoke with equal caution. "I believe I can manage all right alone. The Sheriff will probably be looking for us to rush the jail, but he won't expect me to come alone. Bat Lewis goes on duty as the relief, about nine o'clock. I mean to beat him to it, and if the Sheriff opens up for me I'll be away with Santry before he hears. But I must get some sleep."

The two men arose.
"Well, good luck to you, Gordon," Trowbridge slapped his friend on the shoulder, and they separated.

"Frank, can you let me have a bed?" Wade asked of the hotel proprietor, a freckled Irishman.

"Sure, as many as you want."

"One will do, Frank; and another thing," the ranchman said guardedly, "I'll need an extra horse tonight, and I don't want to be seen with him until I need him. Can you have him tied behind the school-house a little before nine o'clock?"

"You bet I can!" The Irishman slowly dropped an eyelid, for the schoolhouse was close by the jail.

Wade tumbled into the bed provided for him and slept like a log, having that happy faculty of the healthy man, of being able to sleep when his body needed it, no matter what impeded against the hour of awakening.

When he did wake up, the afternoon was well advanced, and after another hearty meal he walked over to the Purnells' to pass the time until it was late enough for him to get to work.

"Now, Gordon, will tell you I'm right," Mrs. Purnell proclaimed triumphantly, when the young man entered the cottage. "I want Dorothy to go with me to call on Miss Rexhill, and she doesn't want to go. The idea! When Miss Rexhill was nice enough to call on us first."

Mrs. Purnell set much store upon her manners, as the little Michigan town where she was born understood good breeding, and she had not been at all annoyed by Helen Rexhill's patronage, which had so displeased Wade.

MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Inflammation and Great Weakness

West St. John, N. B.—"I was in a general run-down condition following the birth of my twin boys. I had a great deal of inflammation, with pains and weakness. Finally my doctor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He said that your medicine would be the only thing to build me up. I am sure he is right, for I am feeling much better and am gaining in weight, having gone down to ninety-three pounds. I was in bed for over a month, but am up again now. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to my friends and give you permission to use my letter."—Mrs. ELMER A. RITCHIE, 82 Rodney St., West St. John, N. B.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Ritchie's experience is but one of many.

ronage, which had so displeased Wade. To her mind the Rexhills were very great people, and great people were to be expected to bear themselves in lofty fashion. Dorothy had inherited her democracy from her father and not from her mother, who, indeed, would have been disappointed if Helen Rexhill appeared any less than the exalted personage she imagined herself to be.

"Oh, I'd like to meet her well enough, only . . ." Dorothy stopped, unwilling to say before Wade that she did not consider the Rexhills sufficiently good friends of his, in the light of recent developments, for them to be friends of hers.

"Of course, go," he broke in heartily. "She's not responsible for what her father does in the way of business, and I reckon she'd think it funny if you didn't call."

"There now!" Mrs. Purnell exclaimed triumphantly. "All right, I'll go." In her heart Dorothy was curious to meet the other woman and gauge her powers of attraction. "We'll go to-morrow, mother."

Quite satisfied, Mrs. Purnell made some excuse to leave them together, as she usually did, for her mother heart had traveled farther along the Road to To-morrow than her daughter's fancy. She secretly hoped that the young cattleman would some day declare his love for Dorothy and ask for her hand in marriage.

In reply to the girl's anxious questions Wade told her of what had happened since their meeting on the trail, as they sat together on the porch of the little cottage. She was wearing a plain dress of green gingham, which, somehow, suggested to him the freshness of lettuce. She laughed a little when he told her of that and called him foolish, though the smile that showed a dimple in her chin belied her words.

"Then the posse is still at the ranch?" she asked.

"I think so. If they are, we are going to run them off to-morrow morning, or perhaps to-night. I've had enough of this nonsense and I mean to meet Moran halfway from now on."

"Yes, I suppose you must," she admitted reluctantly. "But do be careful, Gordon."

"As careful as I can be under the circumstances," he said cheerfully, and told her that his chief purpose in coming to see her was to thank her again for the service she had rendered him.

"Oh, you don't need to thank me for that. Do you know?" she puckered up her brows in a reflective way—"I've been thinking. It seems very strange to me that Senator Rexhill and Moran should be willing to go to such lengths merely to get hold of this land as a speculation. Doesn't it seem so to you?"

"Yes, it does, but that must be their reason."

"I'm not so sure of that, Gordon. There must be something more behind all this. That's what I have been thinking about. You remember that when Moran first came here he had an office just across the street from the present one?"

"Yes. Simon Barsdale had Moran's present office until he moved to Sheridan. You were his stenographer for a while, I remember." Wade looked at her curiously, wondering what she was driving at.

"Moran bought Mr. Barsdale's safe." Her voice sounded strange and unnatural. "I know the old combination. I wonder if it has been changed?"

"Lem Trowbridge was saying only this morning," said Wade thoughtfully, for he was beginning to catch her meaning, "that if we could only get proof of something crooked we might . . ."

"Well, I think we can," Dorothy interrupted. They looked searchingly at each other in the gathering dusk, and he tried to reach the light in her eyes, and being strangely affected himself by their close proximity, he misinterpreted it. He slipped his hand over hers and once more the desire to kiss her seized him. He let go of her hand and was just putting his arm around her shoulders when, to his surprise, she appeared suddenly indignant.

"Don't!"

He was abashed, and for a moment neither said a word.

"What is the combination?" he finally asked hoarsely.

"I promised Mr. Barsdale never to tell any one." Her lips wreathed into a little smile. "I'll do it myself."

"No, you won't." Wade shook his head positively. "Do you suppose I'm going to let you steal for me? It will be bad enough to do it myself; but necessity knows no law. Well, we'll let it go for the present then. Don't you think of doing it, Dorothy. Will you promise me?"

"I never promise," she said, smiling again, and ignoring her last words in womanly fashion, "but if you don't want me to . . ."

"Well, I don't," he declared firmly. "Let it rest at that. We'll probably find some other way anyhow."

She asked him then about Santry, but he evaded a direct answer beyond expressing the conviction that everything would end all right. They talked for a while of commonplaces, although nothing that he said seemed commonplace to her and nothing that she said seemed so to him. When it was fully dark he arose to go. Then she seemed a little sorry that she had not let him put his arm around her, and she leaned toward him as she had done on the trail; but he was not well versed in women's subtleties, and he failed to guess her thoughts and walk-

"Twice desire, ere it be day."

Having mounted his horse at the livery stable, he first made sure that the extra horse was behind the schoolhouse, where he tied his own, and then walked around to the jail. On the outside, this building was a substantial log structure; within, it was divided into the Sheriff's office and sleeping room, the "bull pen," and a single narrow cell, in which Wade guessed that Santry would be locked. After examining his revolver, he slipped it into the side pocket of his coat, and walked boldly up to the jail. Then, whistling merrily, for Bat Lewis, the deputy, was a confirmed human songbird, he knocked sharply on the door with his knuckles.

"It's me—Bat," he called out, mimicking Lewis' voice, in answer to a question from within.

"You're early to-night. What's that which with scorn she put away."

struck you?" Sheriff Thomas opened the door, and turning, left it so, for the "relief" to enter. He had half feared that an attempt would be made to liberate Santry, but had never dreamed that any one would try the thing alone. He was glad to be relieved, for a poker game at which he wanted to sit in would soon start at the Gulch Saloon.

He was the most surprised man in Wyoming, when he felt the cold muzzle of Wade's Colt boring into the nape of his neck, and heard the ranchman's stern warning to keep quiet or take the consequences. Sheriff Thomas had earned his right to his "star" by more than one exhibition of nerve, but he was too familiar with gun ethics to argue with the business end of a "45."

"Not a sound!" Outwardly cold as ice, but inwardly afire, Wade shoved the weapon against his victim's neck and marched him to the middle of the room. "I've got the upper hand Sheriff, and I intend to keep it."

"You're a damn fool, Wade." The Sheriff spoke without visible emotion and in a low tone. "You'll go up for this. Don't you realize that . . ."

"Can it!" snapped Wade, deftly disarming the officer with his free hand. "Never mind the majesty of the law and all that rot. I thought that all over before I came. Now that I've got you and drawn your teeth, you'll take orders from me. Get my foreman out of that cell and be quick about it!"

There was nothing to do but obey, which Thomas quietly did, although somewhat in fear of what Santry might do when at liberty. When the cell door was unlocked, the old plainsman, in a towering rage at the injustice of his incarceration, seemed inclined to choke his erstwhile jailer. "None of that, Bill," Wade admonished curtly. "He only been a tool in this business, although he ought to know better. We'll tie him up and gag him, that's all. Rip up one of those blankets."

"I knew you'd come, boy!" The foreman's joy was almost like that of a big dog at sight of his master. "By the great horned toad, I knew it!" With his sinewy hands he tore the blanket into strips as easily as though the wool had been paper. "Now for him, drat him!"

Wade stood guard while the helpless Sheriff was trussed up and his mouth stopped by Santry, and if the ranch owner felt any compunction at the sight, he had only to think of his own men as he had seen them the night before, lying on the floor of the ranch house.

"Make a good job of it, Bill," was his only comment.

"You bet!" Santry chuckled as he drew the last of the knots tight. "That'll hold him for a spell, I reckon. How you feel, Sheriff, purty comfortable?" The flowing end of the gag so hid the officer's features that he could express himself only with his eyes, which he batted furiously. "Course," Santry went on; in mock solicitude, "if I'd thought I mighta put a bit of sugar on that there gag, to remind you of your mammy like, but it ain't no great matter. You can put a double dose in your coffee when you git loose."

"Come on, Bill!" Wade commanded. "So long, Sheriff," Santry chuckled. (To be continued)

France Insisting On Ruhr Mine Owners Paying Coal Tax

Duesseldorf.—By a decree issued by Gen. Degoutte, Hugo Stinnes and other mine owners and directors are liable to trial by court-martial, with possible imprisonment and fine, if they refuse to pay taxes on coal production, or if they oppose the French and Belgian efforts to wrest from them shipments of fuel on account of reparations.

The order, which becomes effective immediately, provides against eventualities in the struggle, and also calls for the seizure of coal at the pit head in cases where the Germans refuse to pay the taxes, and gives the Franco-Belgian authority to refuse export licenses to any owners failing to comply with their demands.

The system of tax collections or assessments on coal is virtually the same as that of the German Government, to which owners are supposed to pay an internal tax of 40 per cent. upon all coal taken from the mines.

Since the operation began the German owners have flatly refused to pay the tax. The French mining officials will tax the owners on a tonnage basis, according to production. Should they refuse to comply with these demands, the owners may be arrested, tried imprisoned and also subjected to heavy fines in francs.

In order to avoid difficulties with neutral countries, the 40 per cent. tax will not be imposed on shipments to Holland or Switzerland.

Searchers Find Hunter's Body

Charles Allard Died of Exposure in Cowichan Hills

Victoria.—The body of Charles Allard, the Cowichan cougar hunter, who has been missing since February 13, was found Feb. 27 by search parties, less than a mile from Jones' Cabin, B.C., in the Cowichan Hills. Apparently he died of cold and exposure soon after he separated from his partner, Albert Sockett, formerly of Calgary, who was found five days ago crazed and starving, and is now slowly recovering in Cowichan hospital.

The two men were trailing a cougar and struck different trails from their dogs. A snowstorm obliterated their trails and they were lost in the hills.

Chancellor of Exchequer Gives Figures For 62-Year Term

London.—Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to a questioner in the House of Commons said that, on the basis of the 62-year term for payment of the debt to the United States, the payments on the debt would be as follows:

An immediate cash payment of $4,128,085; an annual payment of $161,000,000 for ten years and a final payment of $118,181,330 or an aggregate of £2,246,000,000 at par of exchange, and four per cent. more at 4.68.

These figures, he said, had no meaning except in relation to the 62-year term. If Great Britain paid more speedily then the aggregate would be reduced.

HER HEART SKIPPED EVERY THIRD BEAT

Mrs. James Burleigh, 248 King St. E., Chatham, Ont., writes: "I think it my duty to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me."

I suffered for years with palpitation of the heart, my nerves were very bad, and I could not be left alone at any time. I doctored for over a year, and the doctor said my heart was very bad as it skipped every third beat.

I gave up, just at this time, and then my mother advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, saying my eldest brother had been relieved by using them when he was very bad with his heart and nerves. I got a box and started to take them, and when I had used it I felt a lot better; could sleep a little and felt stronger. I continued taking them for about three months, and felt better than I had for years.

When I think of the misery and suffering I went through before I started Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I feel like letting everyone know what they did for me."

Ambassador Harvey Praises Britain's Way Of Handling Debt

London.—"One or two debtors appeared and talked about the weather; Great Britain arrived and talked business. The outcome was the completed settlement of this greatest financial transaction in less than a month," declared George Harvey, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, in a speech delivered at a dinner given by the Pilgrims in honor of Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who headed the British debt funding mission to Washington.

The Prince of Wales surprised the Pilgrims by dropping in unexpectedly. He is a member of the Pilgrims, and he explained that he did not want to make a speech or to be toasted, but came simply as a member to hear the speeches and to have dinner.

Ambassador Harvey said the settlement of the British debt question was the first conclusive settlement of a really vital world problem since the armistice. He said he firmly believed it enhanced the mutual respect and everlasting friendship between Great Britain and the United States.

"The United Kingdom," said the Ambassador, "continues to rest on the rock of financial integrity and national honor."

THE MISSION SCRIBE GETS NASTY—AND PERSONAL

Editor Bates of Mission forgets good business and even country newspaper manners in his bitter and petty personal references to me in an article supposedly dealing with Abbotsford's incorporation proposals. I have not yet met my contemporary, and do not wish to judge him by his editorial, but being the second verbal attack I cannot let it pass, evident as the motive is to those reading the lines.

Dealing first with the question before our people, I contend that the comparison made in the Mission paper, between Abbotsford's organized school district and an incorporated village such as Abbotsford would be, is not compatible. The figures we have published relative to taxes are not astray, and the bogey raised regarding increased assessment is misleading, and tends to create a cleavage between property owners and renters in our town.

By reading excerpts of the "Act" published herein a few weeks ago it will be seen that every line of business is subject to taxation, thus giving the Council power to make the taxes fair and equitable to both the owning and renting classes.

"Class Consciousness" is something we can get along without in Abbotsford, the apparent desire of the Mission paper's article being to increase the factional disharmony here. Abbotsford has a considerable tenant population, and I maintain that they are contributing their quota of value in community upbuilding, and by paying reasonable rents for the premises they occupy, appear to satisfy most of the land owners. If "Property Owner" is overloaded with land it will not help him to air his grudge in the Mission paper (or perhaps he just wants to be taken notice of again). I am sure the majority of land owners here do not hold any resentment against tenants, knowing that the situation is one which eventually adjusts itself. Tenants are not all "birds of passage." Many pay high and profitable rents for years, while others ultimately purchase property when their means permit.

CALLS PROGRESSIVE EFFORTS OF ABBOTSFORD A "JOKE"

Incorporation of Abbotsford to a village, or any other effort our town makes towards improvement may be a "joke" to Editor Bates when it is remembered where his interests are, but as several of our local merchants are still generously contributing to his paper, he might be graceful enough to conceal his amusement and hostility. If he attended a few of our meetings and took active part in the community life of this town which has been a good customer to him for so many years, he would then know that incorporation of Abbotsford is not a personal "whim" of myself but a project discussed in meeting and sponsored by property owners and business men who requested the "News" to secure legal data and present the subject to our citizens.

Innuendo and insinuation being part of my contemporary's writing, I take this opportunity to state that the "News" is not here to represent any faction or political party. Abbotsford was decided upon after proper consideration as a location for my plant, this town being selected purely because of actual and potential commercial conditions. Despite our increasing foreign advertising, it is the local men represented in our advertising columns who made installation of the plant possible, and I, on my part, am doing my best to give value. The initial effort of the "News" is to be a unifying force in this community, which has, in the past, been held back and factionalized by bigoted and destructive elements such as we have an example. The News further tries to bring the best side of our community issues to public notice, and does considerable volunteer boosting, such as the regular circulation of 'missionary' copies of this paper to sections of the Old Country, the States and the Dominion. People pay money to read the News, and it is valued accordingly. For the short time we have been in this field our circulation—and it is a paid-up one—is increasing most satisfactorily.

THE NEWS IS NOT A JOURNALISTIC PARASITE

I find that people here want live and human issues discussed, even if the writer's ideas are not quite mature, in preference to railroad propaganda and musty party "fillers". And there are other towns whose people feel the same way. As for the Western Newspaper Union service, it has been proved so many times as popular for small papers that live publishers do not begrudge the small additional expense. 'Foreign' advertisers usually know a 'corner' when they see one, and we have no trouble in securing all of this class of business available. Put in case of this conflicting with local advertisers we naturally give our ownpeople preference when selling space.

Then since Mr Bates deprecates my traveling propensities and states that I am not likely to stay long—(so disappointing)—perhaps the indulgent reader will give me a few more lines. Financially the "News" is sound (this can be verified in the usual way). The plant is almost all paid for and is so arranged with labor-saving machinery that work can be produced at a minimum of expense for labor, and most efficiently. Outside competition is being met and orders obtained from U.S., Vancouver, and neighboring points. We have nothing invested in the town so Mr. Bates states. Well, we did not get our plant as a gift from a political party and we invite him or anyone else who desires, to view it. As for the work it does, our customers have judged.

NEWS EDITOR MUST BE SHIFTY CHARACTER!

It is true, as the Mission paper says, I am not yet a registered property owner, but I'm on the way. Then I have traveled around too much! Isn't this the age of Travel? I consider it is a young man's privilege. Travel is an education, and develops some qualities very essential to progressive modern business. Youth does not limit its horizon, and my objectives have been ambitious, and are yet. I admit having promoted other businesses, and they survive with credit today. Further, I can retrace my steps to each vocation—and location—with the knowledge that I have not lost the confidence or good fellowship of past associates and acquaintances. And there's plenty of time yet to become an old timer in any community where prospects are good.

Such a display of personal nastiness camouflaged as discussions of incorporation comes with ill grace from Mr. Bates, who, apart from the impriety of using his paper for such a purpose, should not be so sore because Abbotsford people, after having contributed for years to the upbuilding of a rival town, feel that they have a good town of their own, and are trying to develop it, even by, among other things, another consideration of the spring "joke"—Incorporation.

Contrary to the expressed hopes of the Mission scribe, and the rumors which have been so charitably started, the "News" is positively here to stay. And it takes no backseat with its neighbors, no matter how many years they have been training to produce their finished masterpiece.

Better Conditions Needful In Order To Make Rural Life Attractive

I would emphasize the fact right here, Mr. Speaker, that this is the problem we have to solve today in Canada. When you have made the countryside a good place to live in and have helped to make rural homes happy and prosperous, I have no difficulty in believing, you will have gone a long way towards solving your industrial problems. I really believe that people have attempted to build up the country from the wrong end; they have tried to build it up from the industrial, instead of from the rural, point of view. The development of the natural resources of the country is the first duty that lies at the hands of the Government, and nothing can be done in this direction by herding people into large cities. I might go on for quite a while stating just what was the trouble with the countryside, but I may tell you that one of the first things we have to take into consideration is the lack of remuneration. You cannot get people to stay anywhere or undertake any work if they are not going to receive adequate remuneration for their labors. In by-gone years it has not taken the young people in the country districts very long to learn that more remuneration and better conditions were to be found in the cities than in the country, and consequently they have sought them. We cannot blame those people; they did just what was natural, and what others would likely do again. Perhaps every dweller in the rural districts will agree with me in what I am about to say; at least I know it is true of my own particular district, where I am well acquainted. Look over that district and pick out the best homes and the most intelligent people, and in the great majority of cases you will find that the brightest and best of the children have left the countryside and gone to the cities. I am not going to attempt to solve the problem which that state of affairs presents I am simply pointing out what is a fact, and I should like the Government to take notice of it and endeavor to find some remedy.—Robert Forke (Brandon).

May Lead to Controversy

Bill Amending Canada Temperance Act to be Discussed

The bill amending the Canada Temperance Act, of which Senator Casgrain gave notice to the Senate some days ago, will probably give rise to considerable controversy. The aim of the bill is to provide for the abolition of licenses to manufacture intoxicating liquor in provinces where the sale thereof is prohibited.

The bill provides in part that upon receipt by the Secretary of State for Canada of an order-in-council passed by any dry province, requesting that no licenses be issued for the manufacture within that province of any intoxicating liquor other than for sacramental or medicinal purposes, or for manufacturing for commercial purposes other than as a beverage, or such other intoxicating liquor as may be lawfully sold in the province, the governor-in-council shall cease to issue such licenses after March 31, 1921.

Appreciates Gift of Vimy

Canada's Gratitude to France Expressed by House of Commons

By formal resolution, the House of Commons has expressed its gratitude to France for the gift to Canada of 250 acres of land on Vimy Ridge where a monument is to be erected commemorating the exploits of Canadian soldiers in the war. Leaders of all parties united in the expression of heartfelt thanks.

It was the purpose of the Battlefields Memorial Commission to erect eight monuments, three in Belgium and five in France.

"Vimy Ridge stands as one of the world's great altars of sacrifice," declared Mr. King. "In addition to marking the site of the great battle, the monument would serve as an indication of the enduring friendship between the French and the Canadian people."

Hon. R. J. Manion spoke as one of those who was at Vimy Ridge on April 9, 1917, and desired as a returned soldier to be associated with the Premier and others who had spoken in the acceptance from France of this gift. No better site could have been chosen for a monument for the Canadian troops who fell in France.

Big Irrigation Projects

Two Large Undertakings to be Carried Forward This Year

This year will see two large irrigation undertakings in Southern Alberta brought to a stage where the land will be "under the ditch" with water being delivered to the farmer's land. The larger of these projects is the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation district, comprising some 220,000 acres of land, of which 105,000 acres are irrigable. In general terms this project lies between the Old Man and Little Bow Rivers, west and north of Lethbridge, and extending as far west as the pioneer town of MacLeod. The smaller is known as the United Irrigation district, and lies in the foothill country west of Cardston, and about 25 miles south of MacLeod. This project is of 21,000 irrigable acres. The two projects will bring 130,000 acres of land under the ditch or the equivalent of almost six townships. Both projects were built during the past two years, under the Alberta Irrigation District Act and the financing was made possible by the guarantee of the districts six percent bonds by the Provincial Government.

Rundle states that twenty-five years ago the total yield of the field crops of the three prairie provinces was 1,000,000 bushels. Last year the estimate shows 800,000,000. In 1893 the population in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta was 400,000, now it is slightly under 2,000,000. Twenty-five years ago when production was 32,000,000 bushels. Last year it was 375,000,000 bushels. In 1901 the western live stock numbered 1,620,000 while in 1922 it counted 8,200,000 head. Twenty-five years ago the savings deposits for all Canada totalled $140,120,000 while today the prairie provinces alone show savings of $200,000,000 and the people there have bought $210,000,000 worth of Victory Bonds.

Harry Todd's old-time dance was a success although the crowd was not as large as usual.

The monthly business meeting of the Community Association was held on Friday last and the convenors of committees reported good work with increase of membership. The payments on the hall and piano are all paid up to date, with a balance to our credit in the bank.

On Monday night April 9th some of the residents gave a farewell party in the hall to Mr. and Mrs. A. Wood.

A good time was enjoyed by all although the folks regretted losing two of their very best members of the Community, Mr. and Mrs. Wood will now reside in Vancouver where Mr. Wood will probably be back at his pre-war job with the C. P. R.

On this Friday, April 13th, the Poplar Sunday School will give a concert during which Rev. W. Robertson will give his lecture "My Visit to the Grand Canyon of Arizona."

On Friday April 20th, a Scotch dance will be held in the hall. Mr. J. Downie's orchestra will provide the music, Mrs. Wm. Elwood will be hostess and we hope for a large crowd particularly from the Caledonian Society of Abbotsford.

Peardonville

A meeting was called Friday evening April 7th, at the Peardonville Community hall for the purpose of forming a ratepayers association.

There was quite a representative number of ratepayers present. The meeting was called to order by M. Z. Melander who gave a short address on the need of organization and co-operation.

Officers were elected pro. tem. as follows: C. Little, president; G. Taylor, secretary. Delegates—R. Peardon and A. Tracy.

A resolution was passed inviting Abbotsford Board of Trade to address the meeting next Friday evening April 13th.

Mr. A. Welch who was successful in capturing a coyote and had the same on a chain for training purposes was unfortunate in having the coyote jump off the chain and make its getaway taking a perfectly good collar with it.

The last dance this season to be held in Peardonville Community hall will be given on April 21st. Mrs. Geo. Taylor is hostess.

"No. You wait for me at the pine. You'll have to rustle your grub the best way you can. I may not get back until to-morrow—until this evening—it's morning now. But wait until I come. There will be plenty for you to do later on and there is no use of you going back to town with me. It might get you into worse trouble than you're headed for already, and what I've got to do, I can do alone."

Wheeling his horse, he rode off toward Crawling Water.

That he could take his men with him, storm the jail and release Santry, Wade did not doubt, but to do so would be to bring each of the men into open conflict with the law, a responsibility which he was resolved to bear alone. Then, too, because his long ride had cooled him somewhat, he intended to make one more appeal to the Senator. Possibly, Moran had exceeded his instructions, and if this were so, it was no more than just that Rexhill, who had seemed to evince a willingness to be helpful, should have the opportunity to disown the act of his agent. Besides, if Santry could be peaceably released, he would be freed of the charge hanging over him, which would not be the case if he were taken from the jail by strategy or violence.

With haggard countenance and inflamed eyes, Wade bore little resemblance to his normal self when he again appeared before the Senator, who received him in his dressing-gown, being just out of bed. Rexhill listened with a show of sympathy to his cattleman's story, but evidently he was in a different mood from the day before.

"My boy your friendship for your foreman is leading you astray. Your faith in him, which is natural and does you credit, is blinding you to an impartial view of the case. Why not let the law take its course? If Santry is innocent his trial will prove it. At any rate, what can I do?"

"Senator—" Wade spoke with intense weariness. "Only yesterday you offered to help us. The situation, as I explained it then is unchanged now, except for the worse. Bill Santry is free of any complicity in Jensen's death. I am positive of it. He sent me word that he had not left the ranch, and he would not lie to save himself from hanging. Besides, the men were shot in the back, and that is absolute proof that Santry didn't do it."

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."

—Mrs. J. R. McMAHON, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

"Mere sentiment, Gordon; mere sentiment. Proof? Pooh!" Rexhill's slightly contemptuous tone worked upon Wade in his exhausted, overwrought condition, and stung him. A strange look of cunning appeared in his eyes, as he leaned across the table which separated them.

"Senator, Moran made me an offer the other day for my land. If I accept that offer, will you exert your influence in Santry's behalf?"

Coming so swiftly upon his planing, the prospect of such signal success was so gratifying to Rexhill that only in halting speech could he maintain a show of decorous restraint. His countenance expressed exultant relief as well it might, since he seemed to see himself snatched out of the jaws of ruin.

"Why, Gordon, I— Of course, my boy, if you were to show such a generous spirit as that, I—er—should feel bound—" The sense of his remarks was lost in the crash of Wade's fist upon the table.

"Damn you!" The cattleman was beyond himself with fatigue, rage, and a rankling sense of injustice. "They told me that was your game. I believed it of Moran, but I thought you were square. So you're that sort, too, eh? Well, may you rot in hell before you get my land, you robber! Now listen to me." He waved his hand in the direction of the street. "Out there's a hundred men—real men—who're waiting the word to run you out of this country, you and Moran, too, and by God we'll do it—we'll do it—and we'll begin right away!" Again his heavy fist crashed down on the table. "Never mind Bill Santry," the instinct of discretion was gaining in Wade. "He can stay where he is for the present! First, we'll attend to you pirates—then we'll see."

He stopped suddenly at sight of Helen, who, attracted by the noise, had entered the room, and stood before him in a filmy negligee.

"What is the matter, Gordon?" she demanded anxiously.

"I beg your pardon," Wade spoke awkwardly, unashamed of himself, except for her. "I'm worn out and I—I lost my temper."

"Will you—er—leave the room?" The Senator was beginning to pull himself together. It was the first time he had ever been ragged in such a way, and his composure had suffered; he spoke now with more than his usual pomposity.

"I will," Wade answered curtly, as he turned on his heel and departed.

The Senator puffing slightly, fiddled with his glasses.

"Your young friend has seen fit to accuse me of—of—" For the life of him, he could not at once say of just what he had been accused, unless he allowed self-accusation to prompt his words. "Some sheepherders have been murdered, I believe," he went on, "and Wade seems to think that Moran and I are implicated."

"You," his daughter exclaimed; evidently her amazement did not extend to Moran.

"Preposterous nonsense!"

"Yes, of course," Helen walked to the window and stood looking down into the street. "I'm afraid Gordon hasn't improved since we saw him last," she added, finally. "He seems quite a different person from the man I used to know. What are you going to do about it?"

"Crush him!" The Senator's lips set in a thin, white line, as his hand descended on the table on the spot where Wade's fist had fallen. "This, apparently, is his gratitude to me for my interest in him. Now I intend to show him the other side of me."

"Certainly, no one can blame you for punishing him. Oh, everything between him and me is quite over," said the girl, with a peculiar smile. "He's a perfect bear."

"I'm glad you feel that way about it, Helen." Her father's set lips relaxed into a responsive smile. "You couldn't be my daughter and not have some sense."

"Have I any?" Helen naively asked. She was gazing out of the window again, and to her mind's eye the dusty, squalid street became a broad highway, with jewelers' shops on either side, and modistes, and other such charming things, just as they are found in New York, or—Paris!

CHAPTER VIII.

Higher Than Statute Law

Wade descended the stairs of the hotel and went into the barroom, turning with rage and chagrin because Helen had seen him in such a temper. Like most men of action, he took pride in his self-control, which seldom failed him, but the villainy of the Senator's attitude had momentarily mastered his patience.

Gathered about the bar were a number of men whom he knew, but beyond a nod here and there he took no notice of them, and went to sit down alone at a small table in the corner. His friends respected his desire to be left alone, although several eyed him curiously and exchanged significant remarks at his appearance. They seemed to be of the opinion that, at last, his fighting blood had been aroused, and now and then they shot approving glances in his direction.

"Whiskey," Wade called to the bartender, and a bottle and glass were placed on the table in front of him.

With a steady hand the ranchman poured out and quickly swallowed two stiff drinks of the fiery liquor, although he was not ordinarily a drinking man. The fact that he drank now showed his mental state more clearly than words could have expressed it. Searching in his pockets, he found tobacco and papers and rolled a light cigarette. Nothing could be done bases ended in death! So a recent Canadian investigation showed. These were not cases of infectious diseases—of consumption—of typhoid! They were cases where a person had sustained some slight injury—a cut, a burn, a wire-prick—and where the wound, being thought not serious enough for careful treatment, had been neglected. Blood-poisoning and death resulted. When you or your children sustain any injury, ensure against infection by applying Zam-Buk. for Santry until night, and meanwhile he intended to get something to eat and make the sleep that he needed to fit himself for the task ahead of him. He ordered a steak, which on top of the whiskey put new life into him.

The more he thought of his outburst of temper before Helen the more it annoyed him, for he realized that he had "blown off a bigger wad than he could chew," as Bill Santry would have expressed it. Rascal though the Senator was, so far as he was concerned, Wade felt that his hands were tied on Helen's account. For her sake, he could not move against her father in a country where the average man thought of consequences after the act rather than before it. In a sense Wade felt that he stood sponsor for Crawling Water in the hospitality which it offered Helen, and he could not bring peril down on her head.

But as for Moran and his hirelings, that was a different matter! When the ranchman thought of Moran, no vengeance seemed too dire to fit his misdeeds. In that direction he would go to the limit, and he only hoped that he might get his hands on Moran in the mix-up. He still looked upon his final visit to Rexhill as a weakness, but it had been undertaken solely on Santry's account. It had failed, and no one now could expect tolerance of him except Helen. If the posse was still at the ranch, when he and Santry returned there at the head of their men, they would attack in force, and shoot to kill if necessary.

He learned from Lem Trowbridge, who presently joined him at the table, that the posse would probably still be there, for the report in town was that Moran had taken possession of the property and meant to stay there.

"He does, eh?" Wade muttered grimly. "Well, he may, but it will be with his toes up. I'm done, Lem. By Heaven, it's more than flesh and blood can stand!"

"It sure is! We're with you, Gordon. Your men were over at my place a few hours ago. We grubbed them and loaned them all the guns we could spare. I sent over my new Winchester and a belt of shells for you."

"Thanks." "That's all right. You're more than welcome to all the help I can give you, not only against Moran and his gang, but against Rexhill. If you like, we'll run him out of town while you're putting the fear of God into Moran. Lord! I sure would like to go back to the ranch with you, but it's your own quarrel and I won't butt in."

Wade briefly explained his attitude toward the Rexhills and added that their cause would not be helped by violence toward the Senator, who was a big man at Washington, and might stir the authorities into action on his behalf if he could prove personal abuse. The noise that would be made by such a happening might drown out the justice of the cattleman's claim.

"Well, that's true, too," Trowbridge admitted. "I can see the point all right. What we want to do is to get something 'on' the Senator. I mean something sure—something like this Jensen shooting."

The CANADIAN PACIFIC Railway will now receive and arrange to fill applications for male and female farm help to be supplied from Great Britain, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Switzerland and Norway, in all of which countries the Company has representatives who have farmed in and are familiar with Western Canadian conditions and who are now in touch with such men and women ready and anxious to come to Canada.

Still Hope That Turk Peace Agreement Will Be Possible

Constantinople.—Turkey's rejection of the Lausanne peace treaty, which was not unexpected, has been received calmly in both England and native circles in Constantinople. The belief persists that it is still possible to reach a middle ground agreement towards peace.

The Ankara Government will now proceed to draft a reply to the Allies, which will contain counter-proposals within the limitations established by the assembly's debates and Monday night's resolutions passed by the assembly, which demand strict adherence to the principles of the national pact on all matters affecting Turkey's absolute independence.

The Turkish Government has sent a note of protest to the allied high commissioners here over Greece's refusal to repatriate Turkish prisoners under terms of the recent agreement.

London.—A dispatch to Reuters from Constantinople says the Nationalist Government seems to have won a complete victory on the Lausanne treaty situation in the assembly at Ankara. While the extremists were making objections to the Government proposals, the ministers organized their supporters and quelled the debate with a motion of confidence which specifically endorsed Ismet Pasha's attitude at Lausanne.

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. ## Turks Say Lausanne Treaty Inacceptable

Willing to Continue Negotiations Under Certain Conditions

Constantinople.—Advices from Ankara state that the Turkish National Assembly has decided that the Lausanne treaty is inacceptable, being contrary to the National pact.

The Government, however, was authorized by an important majority to continue negotiations under certain conditions. The first of these provides for the settlement within a limited period of the Mosul question. The second condition is that all financial economic and administrative questions be settled in conformity with the complete independence of the Turkish nation. In the third place, the evacuation of all occupied territories immediately after the signature of peace is demanded.

German Government Floating New Loan

Issue of $50,000,000 Will Be In Foreign Currency

Berlin.—The law authorizing the issue of $50,000,000 worth of treasury bills, which was given official publication, is believed to provide the first instance of a government floating an internal loan quoted only in denominations of foreign money. The law signed by President Ebert makes no mention of the German mark, but says the treasury bills may be purchased in British, U.S., Swiss, Dutch, Swedish, Norwegian, Danish, Argentine, Spanish and Japanese currencies. French and Belgian francs are not included. The work of fixing the details and conditions surrounding issue of the bills is left to the discretion of the Ministry of Finance.

Russia Needs Money

Moscow.—Russia needs money or credit to rehabilitate her industries, not more famine aid, Colonel William N. Haskell, Director of the American Relief Administration, has informed United States Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

B.C. Mine Exhibit

Victoria.—A fine exhibition of the mineral wealth of British Columbia will be made at the forthcoming British Empire Exhibition to be held in London, England, next year, according to Hon. William Sloan, Minister of Mines.

Federal Government Will Assist In Solving Marketing Problems

Ottawa.—Whether the committee to investigate the marketing of agricultural products will inquire into the grain trade, or whether it should be done by a Royal commission, will be the subject of advice from the Department of Justice as a result of the initial meeting of the committee. Most of the western members favor the commission plan, and to it the Government is now quite agreeable, but it does not wish to have history repeated—an inquiry started and then arrested by process of injunction.

If the Justice Department finds any way of advising a commission of inquiry without the hazard of an injunction process, that form will be followed. It is anticipated, however, that, as was the case with the Wheat Board, a certain amount of federal and provincial co-operation will be necessary to secure the fullest form of commission inquiry. If this is not possible, the committee will go into it, though the job is recognized as so onerous that it is not especially relished. Moreover, there are plenty of other subjects connecting with farm product marketing to be taken up.

With the cattle embargo being removed, livestock shippers are encountering the same difficulty in getting space for cattle as used to be encountered by farmers some years ago in securing cars for their grain. It is found that many of the companies have the letting of cargo space in the hands of brokers. There is no tribunal over the steamships, which arbitrarily can allot space as they please. In view of this fact it is very probable that any continuance of difficulty in securing cattle accommodation will induce the Government to put into the service of this trade a number of the ships of the Merchant Marine, which can be adapted without much difficulty.

SAPPHIRE FIND IN B.C.

STONES RESEMBLING BRAZILIAN DIAMONDS BRING HIGH PRICE

Vancouver.—A bed of diamonds equal in purity to Brazilian diamonds, and varying in size from one to three carats, has been discovered by Harry W. Oakley, of Campbell River, B.C., who says his find was made halfway between Cumberland and Courtnay.

The stone, of which he has picked up 45 within the last six months, have been pronounced by experts in Portland Ore., as sapphires, but so nearly white that they resemble Brazilian diamonds. Mr. Oakley has sold several of the stones at $25 a carat.
